The area is home to over 230 bird species such as hornbills, crimson sunbirds and wetland species. However, the highlight of our day will be the opportunity to see orangutans in their natural habitat. This National Park is a conservation area for this endangered species, and conservation efforts include the establishment of 4 research centres by the Leakey Foundation and Orangutan Foundation.

Kota Melaka, or Malacca City, is the capital of the Malaysian state of Malacca. It has a long and illustrious history of trade and influence, due to its significant location on the Strait of Malacca - one of the most important shipping lanes in the world. Colonial influences, rich history and peaceful coexistence of many different peoples make Malacca a fascinating tourist destination.

There is much to see here, so tours will reveal the city to us. After a break for lunch, enjoy a cruise along the Melaka River.

PENANG, MALAYSIA

A day's sailing takes us up the scenic coast of Malaysia to arrive into Penang at the lively city of Georgetown. Famous for its fascinating blend of colonial, Indian, Malay and - especially - immigrant Chinese culture and food, enjoy a traditional dinner on shore and soak up the atmosphere. In the morning, wander through the architectural heritage of Georgetown, with its spectacular Chinese temples and guildhalls. The city feels frozen in time, with the historical centre earning the status of UNESCO World Heritage site. Antsokay Arboretum and Artisan Markets: Opened in 1980 by the Swiss Botanist, Hermann Petignat, the Arboretum site is located 12km southeast of the city's centre. BELO SUR MER, MADAGASCAR

At the village of Belo Sur Mer, we again enjoy the company of the Vezo people. The village sits on the shores of a turquoise lagoon with inviting white-sand beaches shaded by palm trees. When a vessel is launched, there is a festival-like atmosphere and we may be lucky enough to witness such an occasion.

MORONDAVA, MADAGASCAR

In a country scarred by deforestation, Kirindy Reserve is a wildlife habitat for threatened species and is protected and managed through selective and sustainable logging. Covering around 125sq km, Kirindy's dry deciduous forests provide a haven for the endemic fossa, a cat-like mammal the size of a small greyhound, as well as lemurs, birds and reptiles including chameleons. In the afternoon, visit the famed Avenue of the Baobabs, known as the 'most beautiful road in Madagascar'. A local conservation campaign aiming to protect the Avenue as Madagascar's first natural monument in an often-treeless landscape.

MAHAJANGA, MADAGASCAR

Erosion has revealed a wide range of colours in the sandstone surface, from white, pink, orange to ochre shades. Local people collect the colourful sand to create souvenirs, such as drawing images in bottles.

MOZAMBIQUE ISLAND, MOZAMBIQUE

The fortified island of Mozambique and former Portuguese trading post is a UNESCO World Heritage site, significant for its remarkable 16th century architectural features. Connected to the mainland by a 3.4km long bridge straddling the Indian Ocean, the island has two distinct types of dwellings: the stone and lime town of Swahili, Arab and European influence in the north and traditional African macuti town - city of roofed palm leaves - in the south. With the assistance of the professional navigators aboard, complex calculations are minimised, so that all participants can fully take part. Participants will regularly read the magnetic compass and the traditional towed log that will be streamed over the stern and record these readings in the logbook. Using these figures, a dead-reckoning position will be plotted on the plotting ship and corrected, when possible, by sun observations using the sextant and chronometer. A daily noon position will then be transferred to the Indian Ocean chart to track our progress. At the end of the voyage, you will have a unique record of your ocean crossing, recorded on the chart and in the logbook and a set of instruments to take home.

You can also choose to attend daily yoga and meditation classes and find peace and stillness as the waves slip by. Choose from vigorous sunrise sessions on the vista deck, weather permitting, or slow afternoon sessions in the lounge to reset your internal compass. Our onboard instructor will guide you through, so these sessions will be suitable for all experience levels. Our onboard gym is also available for those who prefer to run or use weights.

Our guest lecturer will also hold evening star-gazing sessions as he shares insights on astronomy and how the stars were an important guide for navigators around the world in times past. Enjoy a glass of champagne while taking in the spectacular night sky, far away from any light pollution. This is sure to be a highlight of your voyage.

DAY 20: ARRIVE FREMANTLE

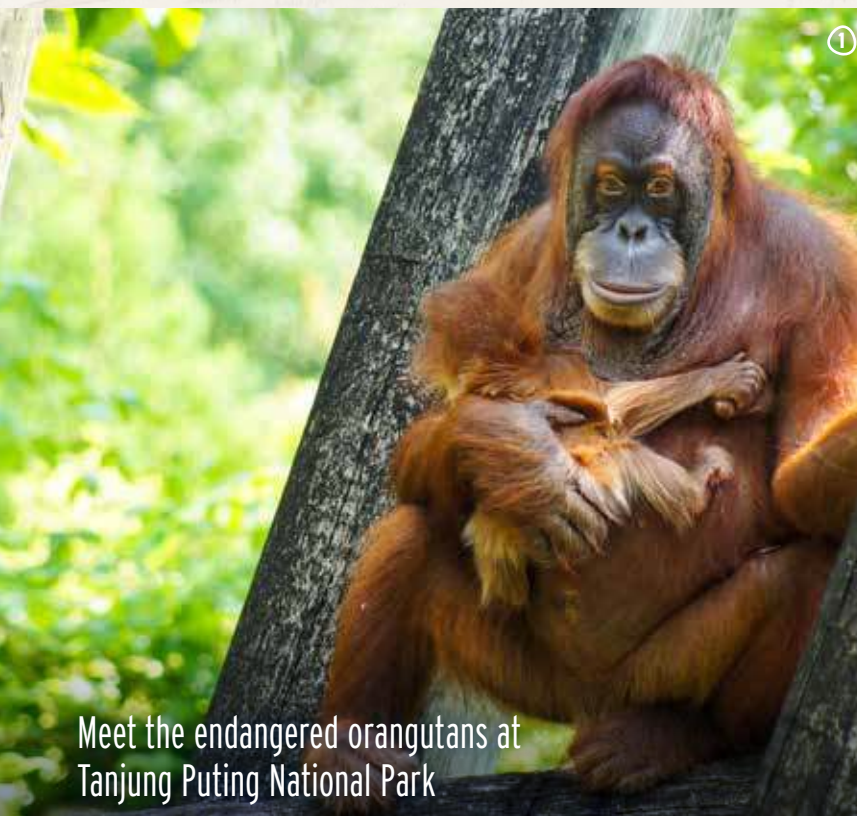

Arrive in Fremantle to disembark at 9:00am.

A TRUE EXPEDITION

In times past, an Indian Ocean crossing was a sailor's rite of passage, a truly daunting task on a wooden sailing vessel. Now you can create your own legends on the new expedition ship Coral Geographer as she sails east in a southern arc from the island of Zanzibar off the African coast and arrives on Australian shores for the first time at Fremantle. The 19-night ocean passage allows you to settle into the rhythm of life at sea.

This epic Indian Ocean crossing offers a rare opportunity to navigate one of the world's great oceans in the wake of famed explorers like Dirk Hartog and Willem de Vlamingh. An extensive onboard program is offered, including Celestial Navigation lessons and an accompanying souvenir chart. Guest presenters and storytellers will be your diversions as you share the waves with migratory seabirds and marine life. If you relish the adventure of an extended ocean crossing, join us onboard Coral Geographer for this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

REFLECTIONS ON THE INDIAN OCEAN

"My own earlier career as a globe-girdling yacht navigator began in Galle Harbour when, as a young man, I hitched my first ride on an American cruising trimaran heading west to Africa. That voyage began as we sailed out past the old fort guarding Galle Harbour's entrance with Arab, Portuguese, Dutch and English heritage.

This began my ongoing fascination with the Indian Ocean that would unfold as I sailed via Madagascar to east Africa, visiting the Maldives, the Seychelles and so many of the places on Coral Expeditions' upcoming itineraries.

It was on this ocean that I first encountered the timeless rhythms of the monsoon winds that had propelled sailors and traders for millennia. These were my first lessons in seamanship, while also learning the old skills of navigating by sextant and the sun, moon and stars. This was an essential area of study for sailors back in the day, circa mid-1970s, before global positioning satellites were commonplace.

What a difference it will be arriving on a luxurious Coral Expeditions ship to the Maldives, out in the remote Indian Ocean south-west of India, just as geographically isolated now as they were then."
